Communicating Science 2013:
A Workshop for Graduate Students

June 13-15, 2013
Cambridge, MA

- Writing sessions with peer review
- One-on-one interaction with professional science communicators including journalists, authors, and educators
- Panel discussions featuring experts in:
  - Engaging non-scientific audiences
  - Science writing for a cause
  - Communicating science through fiction
  - Sharing science with scientists
  - The world of non-academic publishing
  - Communicating using multimedia and the web

Graduate students in science and engineering are encouraged to apply at www.workshop.astrobites.com.

The application deadline is March 1, 2013.

Travel reimbursement and accommodations are available for a limited number of students. All students must apply to attend and only a limited number will be selected.

Communicating Science 2013 is organized by the graduate student authors of www.astrobites.org and www.chembites.org with faculty guidance from Alyssa Goodman (Harvard) and Marcia Bartusiak (MIT).

Sponsors:
Graduate School of Arts & Sciences at Harvard University
Faculty of Arts & Sciences at Harvard University
Harvard University Department of Astronomy
Office of the Dean for Graduate Education at MIT
Microsoft New England Research & Development Center