ABOUT THE WEB DEVELOPMENT GROUP (<http://www.wdg.uri.edu>)

The URI Web Development Group (WDG) is a Web design and development service for the University community. It is a fun and challenging place to work. We use a variety of technologies to design and deliver Web sites (e.g., Photoshop, Illustrator, CSS, XHTML, CSS, Flash, AJAX, XML and more).

The WDG is always looking for new members to join the team. Our goal is to expand the skill level and employability of URI students in Web technology field.

INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITY

Some students who work for the WDG are fulfilling internship requirements. Mentorship from professional staff and senior WDG members to juniors is also a great part of this internship. The chosen candidate will develop live Web applications for his/her portfolios.

JOB DESCRIPTION

The chosen candidate will perform tasks in the areas of Web design and production, multimedia production, content organization and documentation. Specific tasks include:

- ✓ Assist in designing prototypes and (possibly animations) for select sites using design software such as Photoshop, Illustrator, and Flash.
- ✓ Assist in designing templates and translating the design work from Photoshop into functional Web pages using CSS style sheets and Web page editors such as Microsoft FrontPage or Macromedia Dreamweaver.
- ✓ Assist in creating online tutorials and technical documentation.

QUALIFICATION

- Strong Web design skills.
- Demonstrated working knowledge of design software such as: Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator. Other technical knowledge (e.g., Flash) a plus.
- Experience with Web page editors such as Dreamweaver or Frontpage.
- Interest in and skills in technical writing and documentation.
- Ability to work effectively in a team environment.
- Positive attitude, professionalism and desire to learn.
