

Dr. Griffin is the Director of Nursing Education and Research at Boston Medical Center and former Program Coordinator for the new nurse integration programs at Brigham & Women’s Hospital in Boston. Dr. Griffin holds a PhD, MSN, and BSN as well as a diploma in nursing. Currently, Dr. Griffin is a certified Adult Psychiatric Clinical Specialist, and has been a certified nurse in the operating room as well as the ICU. Throughout her 30 year career Dr. Griffin has been a frequent presenter in both academic and clinical settings on a variety of topics, including: comprehensive insurance coverage for women, women’s health, workplace violence, lateral violence and integrating newly licensed nurses into an acute care setting successfully. In addition to practice Dr. Griffin, has published extensively and is adjunct faculty at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, and Northeastern University’s Bouve College of Health Science and an adjunct Associate Professor at the University of Rhode Island.

Education (include basic preparation through highest degree held)

Institution	Major Area	Degree	Year Awarded
Framingham Union Hospital School of Nursing	Nursing	Diploma	1972
Salem State College	Nursing	BSN	1977
Boston College	Nursing	MSN	1979
University of Rhode Island	Nursing	PhD	2000