

Hospice Care of Rhode Island
PHP 593

Preceptor: Walter Soja

Site: Butler Hospital

A rotation in pain and symptom management is offered to students seeking knowledge in this area. This rotation not only exposes students seeking knowledge in the area. This rotation not only exposes students to traditional pharmacological management Of these issues but also prepares students to deal with the many issues of death and dying. Students will learn the importance of the interdisciplinary approach to pain management and symptom control. The role's of alternative therapies will also be discussed. Students electing this rotation will experience patient care at the. Hulitar Inpatient Unit as well as making home visits with physicians or nurses. Students will be required to utilize the pharmaceutical care model for following patients.