INFORMATION ABOUT READMISSION

A readmitting student is one who has been previously admitted to the university, completed the formal withdrawal process or has had a break of at least two regular (fall or spring) semesters during pursuit of an undergraduate degree. Such a break in continuous attendance automatically terminates a student's active status, necessitating readmission in order to continue toward a degree.

Additionally, students who graduated from the University and wish to pursue a second undergraduate degree must apply for readmission, even if there has been no break in continuity of attendance.

A readmitting student may seek readmission into a college and/or program different from that formerly attended. In such a case the student should direct the application to the dean of the college in which admittance is sought. Students formerly in University College who have earned at least 25 credits towards graduation may submit their application for readmission directly to the degree-granting college. (Readmission decisions must be in compliance with 8.25.10-18 Reinstatement of Matriculating Undergraduate Students and 8.42.11-13 Withdrawal, of the University Manual.)
